

Post Graduate Program

Planning Your Next Move

A post graduate year is an academic year beyond high school graduation where a student attends an independent school to take an additional year of high school courses. Some students decide to enroll in a post grad year early on and some students decide after they have graduated and would like an additional year to showcase academic growth.

Taking a gap year has increased over 32% for students over the past four years. Students can use this post graduate year to enhance their academic profile, retaking courses to strengthen their gpa, grow personally, explore career options/interest and/or improve their athletic ability.

Colleges look favorably on post graduates. Whether it is a liberal arts college or an Ivy League school, the student that elects to enroll in dedicating an extra year to work on their academics demonstrates dedication and maturity. These students are serious about improving their growth, academically and personally.

Students can select from AP courses, taking specific CTE courses in their area of interest or retaking courses to higher their gpa.
